The Hague, where the Dutch government is located, is going through a period of change. After 13 years, the Dutch Prime Minister is stepping down. Ahead of new elections, the leaders of 8 other Dutch political parties have also announced their departure from politics. What will these changes bring the country? We will wait and see.

TIIN Capital has also undergone change. In the past month, we exited 2 portfolio companies, including Dutch icon Datumprikker. It's always sad to say goodbye to good friends, but an exit remains a festive moment as it provides new opportunities to the portfolio company. This is certainly the case with both Datumprikker and Felton. You can read more about these 2 exits in this newsletter.
